CHAPLAIN'S COMPASS

Pastor, Good Shepherd Catholic Community

Pentecost

At the beginning of this month of June, our celebration of Pentecost recalls the beginning of the life of the Church with the descent of the Holy Spirit upon the Apostles and through their ministry on all of the disciples of the Risen Lord.

With our celebration of Pentecost, we also mark the end of the Easter season and a return to the Ordinary Time of the Year.

The Easter season has truly been a time of great joy as in our parishes we have welcomed new members into our Church at the Easter Vigil, and we have celebrated Baptism with infants and First Communion with older children, and Confirmation with children, teens and adults.

Going back to the prayer, fasting and almsgiving of Lent, we have actually spent 90 days preparing for and celebrating the Resurrection of Jesus and the gift of His Spirit which sustain us all throughout another year of following the Lord in our daily lives!

On this great feast of Pentecost, I pray that we may all continue to allow the gifts and fruits of the Holy Spirit to flourish in our lives!

The McGivney Prayer

God, our Father, protector of the poor and defender of the widow and orphan, you called your priest, Father Michael J. McGivney, to be an apostle of Christian family life and to lead the young to the generous service of their neighbor. Through the example of his life and virtue may we follow your Son, Jesus Christ, more closely, fulfilling his commandment of charity and building up his Body which is the Church. Let the inspiration of your servant prompt us to greater confidence in your love so that we may continue his work of caring for the needy and the outcast. We humbly ask that you glorify your venerable servant Father Michael J. McGivney on earth according to the design of your holy will. Through his intercession, grant the favor I now present (here make your request).
Through Christ our Lord. Amen.

SK GK Stephen Piscitelli ofc

Worthy Brothers All,

I would like to thank all of you who expressed prayerful support for Donna and myself while we were undergoing the difficulties of our car accident and Covid illness. Thank you to the many brothers and family members who stepped up to cover the many parish events at Good Shepherd and St Louis during our absences. My wife and I have been praying for all of you as well. We hope everyone recovers their health and that everyone will have a wonderful summer.

We have rescheduled the ProLife Baby Shower for June 11 between 12 noon and 2pm. You may just drop off items that were mentioned on the list or make out a donation check to the MaRiH Pregnancy Resource Center. Thank you for your generosity to this very worthy cause.

We have rescheduled the Fraternal Benefits Social for the District for June 15 at 7pm in the lounge. Ft Belvoir Field Agent David Shallmo and our own Field Agent Ralph Heinze will be attending in person to answer insurance questions along with the guest speaker Ed Slott from Abate Agency who will be online to discuss the financial strategies that are important to our members. We will provide a Spaghetti Dinner to all attendees. Please RSVP so we can plan.

Our all important Mt Vernon Columbus Club annual meeting will take place on June 16 in the Hall. Please everyone must attend for us to have a quorum for our elections.

We plan to have the Installation of Council 5998 officers and their VIP and family guests on June 21 at 7pm followed by a nice dinner reception in the Lounge. Dress is dark suit.

We will host our Annual Appreciation Dinner for members and guests on June 25 at 7pm. We hope to have a good turnout from the members who worked so hard for our community.

The Potomac Assembly will also have their installation of Officers on June 27 in the Council Chambers.

Thank you for allowing me to be your Grand Knight this fraternal year. I thank God for each of you and I look forward to working with you and our new officers as we continue to serve our church and one another.

Vivat Jesus,

Brothers,

As the fraternal year comes to an end, Bingo continues its record breaking pace. I again want to thank the dedication and hard work of our Bingo chairman, Larry Dietrick, his wife Debbie and Tim McCauley for our success as well as all of our Bingo and snack bar volunteers.

In regard to our Office modernization and re-organization, we have completed the transition to Quick Books Online and have started training our office staff on its use. This will accomplish one of the goals of office modernization: moving to Quickbooks online for transparency, security and transition to electronic invoicing and bill-paying making for a more efficient office operation. I want to thank my Treasurer and Director Jason Rastovski who spent many hours to help achieve this goal.

The main event coming up is the annual corporation meeting scheduled for Thursday June 16 at 7:00PM. By now, all Knights in our Council should have received a postcard announcing the date and other information about the meeting. Refreshments and food will be provided. A quorum must be present to conduct the annual meeting, so please make every effort to attend this very important meeting. A quorum of 10% of our membership is required which is over 40 people. An email will be sent out during the first week of June with meeting materials and evite invitation which will include a link to a proposed budget, a list of candidates for election to the Board of Directors along with their biographies and any proposed by-law changes.

Our last MVCC Board meeting for this fraternal year will be on Monday, June 13 at 7:00PM. Thank you for your support.

Respectfully,

Alessandro V. Amari
President, MVCC, Inc.

Thoughts by Mike Guignard :

(Mike refers us to an article that was written by Ronald Reagan's daughter for our consideration while we await the Supreme Court Decision)

President Ronald Reagan sits in the Oval Office after he delivered his farewell address to the nation in the White House in Washington, on Wednesday, Jan. 11, 1989.

By Patty Davis | For The New York Times May 26, 2022, 8:00 a.m.

Like every offspring of a famous political figure, I frequently round a corner and slam straight into some aspect of my father's legacy. I've not checked with other political offspring, but I'm guessing we all shuffle through the same questions: Do I speak out, try to offer a wider or more personal perspective? Or do I keep quiet, let the news cycle move on without me and shy away from questions?

Such has been my dilemma since the leak of the Supreme Court draft opinion heralding the end of Roe v. Wade. I first opted for silence, but I'm haunted by memories that I think offer insight into how my father came into his beliefs on abortion — beliefs that had global policy implications and that also stemmed from some complicated, human emotions. Beliefs that were more personal than political.

In 1967, as governor of California, my father signed a bill making abortion legal for victims of rape and incest, and in cases where a woman's mental or physical health was in danger. That law was among the first in the country to decriminalize abortion. He was acutely aware that women who were victims of rape or incest and became pregnant would be re-victimized by being forced to have their attacker's baby. But his religious faith left him questioning when life begins.

I was 14 when he signed the law; I didn't give much thought to it at the time. About a year later, I met a girl who had been raped by her uncle and got pregnant. She had an abortion in California, and she said the bill my father signed made that possible. She asked me to thank him, but I never did. I never told him about her, or about how proud I was of him right then because I dreaded being asked questions about who my friends were, who I was hanging out with. To this day, I wish I had passed along her gratitude, and my pride.

By 1970, my father was rethinking the bill he'd signed. Charles Schulz wrote a "Peanuts" strip that many people perceived as zeroing in on the abortion issue, with a terse exchange between Linus and Lucy. My father wrote Schulz a letter in which he referred to the "soul-searching" he had done before signing the 1967 bill and the long hours of reading and research he had done. He was starting to have regrets because he'd learned that some psychiatrists were diagnosing unwed mothers-to-be with suicidal tendencies after five-minute assessments so that they could get abortions. My father had a tendency to hear a story and assume it was indicative of some wider pattern. That's how his mind worked. And it came to weigh on him.

That seems to be one of the triggers that led him, nearly a decade later, to stand firmly in the anti-abortion camp and declare that the bill he signed as governor was a mistake.

The issue also hit closer to home. I believe my father was haunted by the death of his and Jane Wyman's baby shortly after her birth. To the best of my knowledge, he never spoke about Christine Reagan's death, and he didn't write about it in his autobiography, "Where's the Rest of Me?" I only learned about it in my 40s, and I wondered about his unprocessed grief — the pain he kept to himself. When you don't acknowledge your grief, it keeps pulling on you, leading you back to the waters you're trying to avoid. I think the rhetoric of the anti-abortion movement — phrases like "killing babies" — took him into those waters, into the pain of losing a tiny, innocent life, and the two things became intertwined for him.

My father's views on abortion obviously shifted over the years. Throughout those years, he wrestled with his feelings. I think that needs to be said. While he stated that abortions after rape or incest fell into the category of "self-defense," as did saving a woman's life if pregnancy or childbirth would threaten it, he couldn't accept the notion that a woman would choose to abort a fetus for other reasons.

In 1981, shortly after my father was shot, I was at the White House having dinner with my parents. I don't recall how the abortion issue came up, but it did, and my father said it should be allowed only for rape, incest or the risk of a woman dying. Nothing else. I asked about situations in which a woman isn't able to care for a child at that time — shouldn't it be her choice? For some reason I turned to my mother with the question, and she quietly said, "Yes, it should." I'm haunted by that exchange — and by the fact that I didn't press further to try to see what the conversation between my parents would be. But I had so little currency then. My activism in the antinuclear movement had burned through whatever influence I might have had, so the subject was changed and never revisited.

I'm assuming that my mother never lobbied my father with her feelings about abortion and choice. Or at least not vehemently. He did listen to her opinions, although there was no guarantee his mind would be changed. And clearly it wasn't. In 1986, he elevated William Rehnquist to chief justice on the Supreme Court and nominated Antonin Scalia to fill the vacancy that was left. Abortion rights groups warned that Roe v. Wade could be in jeopardy. Mr. Rehnquist had consistently opposed Roe v. Wade, and Mr. Scalia was known to oppose abortion rights. They were, to me, disturbing appointments.

My father continued to support exceptions for rape, incest and the life of the pregnant woman in other instances, including when he instituted the Global Gag Rule, limiting women's access to abortions in other countries where groups got money from the United States. For reasons I don't understand, when he championed a constitutional "right to life" amendment it included an exception only for the life of the pregnant woman.

Here is what I'd like you to know about Ronald Reagan: There was complexity to his views on abortion; there was, as he said, "soul-searching," and I believe to some degree his views remained a work in progress. I can't change how some view his legacy, but I can offer some insights, some murkiness to what many want to see as brightly lit facts. I can't change the things he said or did, but I can ask you to look a little deeper and consider the tangle of emotions beneath the surface. I can ask you to consider that his faith pulled at him when considering this issue, as did his personal history of losing a newborn. It is, in the end, possible to strongly disagree with people while understanding that they delved deeply into their own hearts, trying to be at peace with their positions. On this issue, though, I'm not sure my father ever found that peace.

PRAYER FOR LIFE

O Mary, bright dawn of the new world, Mother of the living, to you do we entrust the cause of our life: Look down, O Mother, upon the vast numbers of babies not allowed to be born, of the poor whose lives are made difficult, of men and women who are victims of brutal violence, of the elderly and the sick killed by indifference or out of misguided mercy. Grant that all who believe in your Son may proclaim the Gospel of Life with honesty and love to the people of our time. Obtain for them the grace to accept that Gospel as a gift ever new, the joy of celebrating it with gratitude throughout their lives and the courage to bear witness to it resolutely, in order to build, together with all people of good will, the civilization of truth and love, to the praise and glory of God, Creator and lover of life. Amen.

Just thinking . . .Homeward Bound

Associations are quite common in human thought. Pass a commercial bakery and the aroma of fresh bread takes the mind back to Aunt Betty's loaves just out of her oven. Or there's the song on the radio that recalls youthful days when friends would harmonize under a streetlight. Everyone recalls old times now and then.

Recitation of the Litany of the Most Precious Blood of Jesus on TV brings the line, "Blood of Christ, without which there is no salvation," which in turn triggers a mental rendition of "Goin' Home."

It begins with the chorus: "Goin' home, goin' home, I'm a goin' home . . ."

The last verse ends:

. . . Shadows gone, break o'day,
Real life jes' begun,
There's no break, there's no end,
Jes' a livin' on;
Wide awake, with a smile
Goin' on and on.

Its tune is from the Largo theme in Antonin Dvorak's New World Symphony. Some claim the lyrics are from a spiritual written by Harry T. Burleigh, who worked with Dvorak when he was in the United States in the late 1890s. That's wrong, according to American Music Preservation.com. William Arms Fisher, one of Dvorak's pupils, wrote the words in 1922.

Although the music has the sound of an American folk melody or a Black spiritual, Czech traditional tunes inspired the composer. Still, Fisher is quoted as saying Dvorak's own longing for home gave it the sense of the American west or the south with its Black songsters. He also submits that the opening notes of the Largo suggest the words, goin' home.

A basic goal of Christians is to go home to heaven. Another famous song with the same suggestion begins:

Amazing Grace, how sweet the sound
That saved a wretch like me

It ends:

And Grace will lead us home
And Grace will lead us home

That hymn, sung in Catholic churches now, was written by John Newton, ship master and slaver, who later was ordained an Anglican priest.

These are but two examples of home and heaven equated. As Catholics, we know the Church teaches Jesus, the Son of God, sacrificed himself to save the souls of all mankind. Jesus did that by shedding his precious blood on the ignominious cross, the cruel instrument the Romans wielded to control conquered peoples. His suffering was the divine sacrifice that reopened the gates of heaven.

According to the Pew Research Center, 70.6% of the U.S. population is Christian. Evangelical Protestants are most numerous at 25.4%, Catholics come in second at 20.8%.

Of the total adult population, 68% believe in an afterlife, while 78% of Protestants and 77% of Catholics do, according to Google. That would mean that of some 66.8 million American Catholics, 52 million believe in heaven and hell. No speculation here on the spiritual status of that 23% who don't fully believe Church teaching.

But each living person possesses free will and can think and conclude as he wishes. The Church has been around for two millennia, giving testimony to its marks of one, holy, catholic and apostolic. That longevity proves that Jesus did not die in vain. His human creatures can choose to go home through the lives they live. They also – unfortunately – are free to choose perdition.
